COAL STRIKE NEARS END, MEN DEMAND SUBVENTION

Both Sides Provisionally Agree To Resume July 4

SUBSIDY IS ISSUE

Lloyd George To Consult Cabinet On Renewal Of Offer

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—At the opening of the coal conference at the Board of Trade today, the Prime Minister merely counselled the parties to settle the coal deadlock once and for all.

The Miners' Executive were disappointed at the fact that Mr. Lloyd George did not promise the renewal of the offer of a £10,000,000 subsidy.

The coalowners and miners have provisionally agreed to the resumption of work on July 4, subject to an agreement with the Government on the question of financial subvention of the industry.

The conference has adjourned till tomorrow to enable the Prime Minister to consult the Cabinet as regards a subvention.

In the House of Commons today, Mr. Austen Chamberlain stated that if the question of a subsidy arose in the course of the negotiations, he would submit the matter to the House, while hoping that the House would not fetter the discretion of the negotiators.

London, June 27.—In the House of Commons today at questiontime, Mr. W. C. Bridgeman, Secretary for Mines, stated that, since April 1, 335,000 tons of coal had been imported from the United States, 430,000 tons from France and 495,000 tons from Belgium, including 160,000 tons known to be of German origin.

DR. MANNIX TELLS OF IRISH EFFORTS TO AID CHINESE

Archbishop Of Melbourne Is Guest Of Local Catholics; Leaves Today

The effort being made by the people of Ireland to send Catholic missionaries to China and the assistance given Irish missions to China by Catholics in Europe, America and Australia were discussed last night by Archbishop Daniel Mannix of Melbourne in an address delivered at the Astor House where he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by local Catholics. Dr. Daniel Foley, Bishop of Ballarat, was the only other speaker of the evening. Dr. Foley and Father Vaughan, who are of Melbourne, accompanying Dr. Mannix, were also guests at the dinner.

Dr. Mannix told of the early history of Irish Catholic missionaries to China and lauded the zeal and spirit of self sacrifice displayed by the priests sent from Maynooth. Dr. Mannix was president of Maynooth when the movement was started to send Irish priests to China.

Dr. Foley recalled a visit to Shanghai ten years ago, and spoke of the many changes in that period.

Dr. Mannix and his party arrived yesterday morning on the Kleist and will sail for Japan this morning. They visited Catholic institutions of Shanghai during the day and in the afternoon were guests at a reception held at the Carlton Cafe. Dr. Mannix delivered a short address in which he expressed appreciation for the welcome accorded him here.

Chicago Girl Admits Part In Automobile Hold-Ups

MARGARET Lawrence, alias "Gertie the Gun Girl," alias "Lucille DeVoe," photographed in Chicago where she is under arrest charged with having lured and robbed drivers of motor cars. Margaret confessed to the police, saying: "It really was so terribly easy. Sometimes I'd work it alone and sometimes another girl would go with me. We'd stroll along until we saw a real sporty looking car with a sort of sporty looking fellow in it. They kind of go together. I'd direct him to drive us to a lonely spot to meet another girl. There, instead of my girl friend, there'd be a couple of the boys with revolvers, hold him up and even take his car away from him. Oh, it was too easy."

WEATHER MAN SAYS JUNE HAS BEEN FAIRLY DRY

Same Month Two Years Ago Was Real Wet, He Reminds Us

Somebody is always pruning the joy out of life, but nobody seems so fiendishly industrious about it as the Weather Man. And the malicious, underhanded ways he can devise for doing it.

After all, in consideration of the seemingly endless days of damp and the Saturdays' sports being a wash-out week-end after week-end, there was a certain satisfaction in being able to remark, with suitable adjectives and intonation, that this has been the rainiest, altogether the measliest June on record. And after having created this impression, the W. M. comes along and says we're all wrong—and issues figures to prove it.

According to authenticated statistics, says he, there have been 17 days this month upon which there has been—to put it politely—precipitation. Only so short a period agone as 1919 the month here was disfigured by 19 days of rain. The total fall was 11.67 inches. Thus far this month there have been 9.07 inches dropped on us, including the 27th day of the month. So we have only today and tomorrow in which to tie 1919's record. Then again, back in 1917 there were 11.86 inches of rain water dumped on the village and even in 1918, when there were a mere 13 days of wetness, the measured depth was 8.71 inches. Last year it rained 13 days in June, for an aggregate of 7.33 inches. And plunging back as far as 1916 we find that there were 9.06 inches of rainfall in June and that umbrellas were in use on 15 days of the 30.

The heaviest leakage for any one twenty-four hours during the present month was 2.34 inches. Glancing back over the record one notes that this was eclipsed in 1920, 1919, 1918, 1917 and 1916—and probably ad lib.

All the same, the weather reporter reserves the right to his own opinions about the current moon, one of which is that it was the month Mr. Eugene Whitcomb Whittier had in mind when he dashed off "Knee Deep in June."

RICE DEALERS IN MEETING VOTE STRIKE AS PROTEST

300 Representatives Indignantly Reject Licensing Scheme

NANTAO SUPPORT

Will Close Doors Four Days After Settlement Action

The local rice situation grew in gravity yesterday when, at a meeting called by the Chia Kuo Tang Rice Guild in Nantao, 300 representatives of rice shops in the Settlement, and in Chinese territory as well, voted solidly to close their doors unless the Municipal Council recedes in its stand on the licensing question.

An uproar of dissent greeted the announcement of the result of negotiations with the Council and amid cries of "sacrifice personal interests," the resolution for the strike was quickly put through. Attempts to inject a spirit of conciliation into the meeting met with indignant dissent and the gathering broke up in considerable excitement.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. Yi Kung-yu, chairman of the guild, who reviewed the situation which has arisen since the Council announced that licenses would be issued with a view to checking hoarding and profiteering. He then called upon Yi Wei-chun to speak. The latter stated that, together with Messrs. Chien Kwei-san and Chang Lu-chun, he had interviewed the secretary of the Council upon the request of the latter and that, according to the secretary, the Municipal body was resolved to issue the licenses but called attention to the explanations given in the letter to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce—published yesterday—intimating that enforcement of the conditions meant practically no change from the present system of conducting business. When the speaker had finished the meeting was called upon to decide, one way or the other, on the strike program and the vote was carried without further discussion.

NANTAO TO FOLLOW

The Nantao representatives declared that they would cease business on the fourth day of the strike unless a settlement satisfactory to their fellow dealers in the International Settlement is reached.

Many signs of apprehension were visible yesterday among the Chinese. Food contractors, restaurant keepers, heads of hongs and shops, were buying stores of rice to carry them over the expected crisis. Threshing mills were reported to be sending their stocks outside the Settlement limits to godowns in Nantao and Chapei and fewer rice boats arrived from the producing districts. It is now stated that unusually high water in the creeks up country is a factor, aside from the decision of the interior dealers not to ship to Shanghai, which is cutting down the receipt of supplies here. But many junks which have been in port for some days are still unloaded. The Chinese press reported yesterday that shops in Chinese territory bordering the Settlement had stopped taking in stocks through fear of trouble in the event that the Shanghai shops close.

TRY TO AVERT STRIKE

Various organisations and officials are making efforts to avert the strike by an appeal for negotiations between representatives of the rice shop keepers and the Council. The Shansi Road Street Union at a meeting decided to write the Amalgamated Association of Street Unions urging that steps be taken to further a peaceful settlement and the Chinese City Magistrate in a letter to the rice dealers' guild has urged that the decision to strike be deferred with a view to negotiations. He asks that the Nantao shop keepers try to influence the dealers in the Settlement not to close their doors.

It is expected that there will be further meetings today.

Court Rebukes Pastor, Denying Him Citizenship

THE Rev. David Duncan Irvine, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Richmond Hill, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was denied an application for citizenship by Justice Lewis L. Fawcett, in the Queens Supreme County Courthouse. In refusing the application of Rev. Irvine Justice Fawcett said, in part: "It is astounding to the court that such an applicant should seek the great privilege of citizenry with such a character. He is a hypocrite of the blackest kind and should undoubtedly be unfrocked. I am denying this application on the grounds of immoral character, with prejudice against its renewal." Affidavits gathered in the investigation conducted by officials of the Naturalisation Bureau were submitted to the Court. The inquiry was carried into four States.

MISCALCULATION SAVES GODOWN IN INCENDIARY PLOT

Chance Discovery By Watchman Saves Nanking Road Building

A sensational attempt at incendiarism was blocked, largely through chance, in a godown at 36A Nanking Road early last evening.

At about 6 p.m., just as the place was closing, a number of coolies arrived with a handcart loaded with three large packing cases. The godown is sub-leased partly to a Chinese concern and partly to the Grace China Company and the boxes, it was said, were to be moved into the Chinese leased portion. One box had been placed in the godown when one of the watchmen noticed smoke issuing from it. He ordered it taken downstairs into the alleyway and no sooner had it been landed there than there was an explosion and the case burst into flame. The police and fire brigade were notified immediately and hurried to the scene, and the burning box was quickly extinguished.

Investigation of the other crates was then made. Each was found to contain a slightly smaller case and the space between was crammed with sulphur matches, while within the inner box was a large earthenware jar, filled with oil and covered and packed with shavings.

Two small holes had been bored into the sides of the containers, with trains of joss sticks leading in to the jars of oil.

The police arrested two of the handcart coolies by the expedient of leaving the handcart in the alleyway and capturing the men when they came to remove it. The prisoners stated that they had been ordered to transport the cases from Sinza district and detectives were immediately despatched to that district to investigate.

It is thought that the attempt to fire the godown may have been a case of spite work.

PARIS PRESS THINKS TINO WILL AGAIN LOSE HIS JOB

Failure To Heed Allies' Plea Likely To Prove Fatal

TURKISH VICTORY

Greeks Beaten At Adabazar And Forced To Beat Retreat

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 27.—A message from Constantinople states that the Greeks were defeated at Adabazar and were obliged to fall back towards Ismidt, which the Turks are reported to have occupied. A British warship has rescued a number of Allied nationals.

Athens, June 27.—A communique admits that the Greek casualties numbered 200 as a result of a strong enemy attack in the Nicomedia region. The communique adds that a Greek detachment was temporarily in a critical position but, reinforcements being sent up, the enemy was repulsed everywhere with heavy loss.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, June 27.—The French press is practically unanimous in condemning the refusal of Greece to accept the Allies' offer of mediation in the Turco-Greek conflict stating that this refusal is calculated to have unpleasant consequences.

The "Matin" takes the view that after moving to Smyrna with his staff, family and Ministers, after issuing a solemn proclamation announcing the resumption of the offensive and after raising 40,000 new recruits in a country already exhausted by mobilisation, King Constantine could not very well return to Athens and confess that without fighting he had renounced all the advantages accruing from the Treaty of Sevres. "Without a doubt," the "Matin" continues, "Constantine's days are numbered in any case, but in accepting this humiliating renunciation he would run the risk of being rapidly forced to abdicate. He therefore prefers to take this chance, whatever it may be." The paper adds that the military operations will in all probability be of long duration, resulting in a pure loss for the country.

The "Petit Parisien" remarks that at this moment it is difficult to persuade either side to listen to reason and that for the time being Asia Minor is a powder magazine.

The "Figaro" says that Constantine, who betrayed the Allies does not deserve consideration, but adds that they should loyally warn the Greeks—the best elements of whom fought with the Allies until the end of the war—that their Government is basely deceiving them when it promises them the slightest support of the Allies in the present campaign.

The "Petit Journal" recalls that the eventuality of a refusal of Allied mediation was foreseen in the course of the conversations between M. Briand and Lord Curzon and that it had been agreed that in that case each of the Allied Powers should have a free hand.

"In actual practice," the "Petit Journal" goes on, "the Allies can do nothing but await the outcome of the hostilities they vainly tried to prevent, but sooner or later they will have to intervene, because it is not admissible that the Near Eastern question should be settled out of court, between two Powers, one of whom is a vanquished enemy."

Old German Club Being Remodeled

Remodeling operations have begun on the historic German Club, which is to be the future home of the Bank of China.

The work for the present is confined to the rearrangement of the verandah so that the entrance will be at the center, instead of to one side of the building. But the entire program of rearrangement will extend until next Summer and will involve the expenditure of about Tls. 40,000. The work is being done by Messrs. Atkinson and Dallas.

Four Of 'Em, And Their Dad Is The Proudest Man In Town

THE home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Solso, of New Haven, Conn., has been the mecca of neighbors for many blocks around, curiously to see the quadruplets born to the couple, attracting the scores of visitors. The four children, three boys and a girl, are fine healthy specimens and Mrs. Solso was reported to be recovering rapidly enough to be able to leave her bed shortly. Since the birth of the infants, the proud father has stayed home from work to aid in caring for them. James weighs 5½ pounds, Michael, 4½, Salvator, 5, and Angelina, 5 pounds.

Why Did We Come Here? And Why Do We Stay?

By Elsie McCormick

THERE'S a song they always sing at home just shortly before the party breaks up. When the after-dinner speeches are over and forgotten, when the formality of the early evening has given way to a comfortable leaning back in chairs, and when at last there comes a lull in the story telling, somebody always begins, "We're here because we're here because we've here because we're here—," and so on, up to the eighth decimal place.

It seems to us, somehow, that the song has a peculiar bearing in Shanghai. Not that it is sung very much, for we understand that when the parties here reach the proper time for the melody, they are no longer capable of singing. But then that wasn't what we started out to say.

Why are we here, anyway? There are a vast number of reasons. The early days when the population consisted chiefly of two classes—those who came over on religious errands and those who didn't dare to go back—are almost forgotten now. Though the remittance man and the gentleman who fears a reception committee headed by the sheriff are not entirely unknown in the city, they occupy a comparatively small place on the social canvas. Neither are they much given to advertising themselves, for with the passing of the old swashbuckling days has gone any tendency to grow reminiscent over jail sentences at home.

THE WANDERERS

The most important census expanded in Shanghai is the love of the open road and the open sea which the Germans once designated as wanderlust. It is astonishing how large a proportion of the city's foreign population is under thirty-five years of age and how many of them, among the Americans at least, come from small country towns. Evidently the lure of the long, long trail is more tantalising to residents of Elmville Center than to those who dwell in the shadow of the smokestacks and were brought up on the belief that milk is a liquid form of chalk distilled in a bottle. We have no figures to prove it, but we are willing to hazard a guess that there are more former Kansas residents in the city than there are immigrants from New York.

The question of why the feminine population comes has a few different angles to it. Wanderlust has no masculine patent on it, of course, and the call of the world's far places may be heard under a georgette hat as well as under a derby. The only reason why men did most of the adventuring in the past was because the women were esconced behind walls four feet thick with a moat around them. Even in spite of these handicaps, it is on record that more than one gentle layde dressed as a page and began a little Cook's Tour of her own in the wake of some doughty knight.

THE WANDERLUSTRESS

In this present era, when the walls have been levelled by general consent, when pirates have all taken positions as understewards on steamers, and when the world is open to anyone who can unlock it with a ticket, the woman wanderluster has come into her own. Members of the tribe work for a time in Shanghai, take a dip down to Manila, and are next heard from in Java or Peking. They create their own seasons by going South to avoid the Winter and travelling North to escape the Summer.

Usually the feminine wanderer who seeks adventure without becoming an adventuress is a typist, or office secretary. She flits from position to position, dodging a long-term contract as she would a brick-bat, never unpacking her trunk to the bottom, reading steamer schedules with more interest than most people do the comic section, and blithely tripping through all the social life possible in each new habitat. Though she is rarely a "highbrow" who sleeps with a guidebook under her pillow, she usually absorbs more or less unconsciously the local color of her various homes and painlessly adds to her education.

There are other reasons for the feminine exodus to the East. Some, of course, come in response to an invitation that involves a search for a minister in Yokohama. Others come from the same general motive, but with reverse English. The number of young ladies in this city who are heroines of broken engagements at home is really astonishing. To the person who has never left her own continent, a trip to China is equivalent to jumping off the rim of the planet. Incidentally it may be noted that those who come to forget succeed admirably, jazzing toes and broken hearts not being able to dwell

NIPPONESE OBTAIN BIG CONCESSION AS REWARD

Generals, In Cables To Tokio, Tell Of Failure Of Policy

HIT AMERICANS

Admission Is Made Of Financial Aid To Semenoff

(From a Staff Correspondent)

Peking, June 28.—An authoritative copy of a cablegram from General Sudzuki, in command of the Japanese force at Vladivostok, to the General Staff in Tokio, reveals the Japanese policy in Siberia to be as follows:

"The pronounced opposition to Semenoff among the Japanese force has been strengthened by similar opposition from the Consular group, in which the American representative is taking the lead. This situation compels the Japanese force to conciliate the Chita government, this especially as the Mongol force commanded by Baron Ungern von Sternberg is inactive in proportion to the territory occupied.

"This delays settlement of the Semenoff problem. Further, Japan's military appropriation for the support of the Semenoff units has been exhausted without result because of Japan's continual change of program in Siberia, and because of delay in ending the policy of interference in Russian domestic affairs. This delay threatens serious consequences. The situation of the Japanese force requires immediate clearing of the Russian question. I request your influence to this end."

A similar cablegram from General Tachibana to the General Staff in Tokio complains of the inaction of Baron Ungern, and accuses the American representative of hostility towards all Japanese Far Eastern policies. General Tachibana says the Japanese Consuls are ignorant of the real Russian situation, and that they are starting a counter propaganda against the Americans.

An authentic report as to the results of the conference between the Chita government and the Japanese representatives is that an agreement has been reached whereby Japan receives additional fishing rights, forest and mine concessions, special customs treatment, the choice of all concessions in Saghalien Island, and coastwise and river navigation privileges, in return for all of which Chita is promised that the Japanese will evacuate Siberia within four months, thus freeing Siberia of all Japanese influence and making it possible for Chita to send militia detachments to Vladivostok and the maritime ports without interference from Japan.

Cantonese Wildly Celebrate Victory

This success has been celebrated by the people of Canton with great rejoicings, and thousands of students, merchants and laborers paraded the streets. It is also hailed for its strategic importance, inasmuch as it is considered to render the tenure of Nanning precarious for the Kwangsi authorities.

Mrs. Sun Yat-sen is personally directing the women's war relief work.

Canton, June 28.—Dr. Sun Yat-sen has issued a mandate instructing General Chen Chlungming to assist the people of Kwangsi to secure self-government.

BRITAIN GAVE OVER £40,000 TO RELIEVE FAMINE

Sir John Jordan Thanks Contributors For Generous Support

OFFICE HERE CLOSED

Chinese And Foreign Relief Committee Ceases Activities

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—A letter has been published, signed by Sir John Jordan, Sir Charles Addis and Mr. Nelson Bitton, thanking the contributors to the China Famine Relief Fund, which closes on the 30th instant. The letter states that up to the present £24,000 has been transmitted to the United Relief Committee at Peking. The contributions from other organisations, including the Baptist missions, the Salvation Army and Bishop White's fund, bring the total amount of relief sent to China by Great Britain to over £40,000.

The famine in northern China is over. Copious and widespread rains have so modified conditions, that a fair percentage of normal crops are assured, and the so called "famine conditions" have already ceased to exist. The Chinese Foreign Famine Relief Committee, in view of reports received from various fields read at the meeting of the executive board yesterday decided to close its books, "as relief is no longer required." No further donations will be solicited by that committee.

The committee, in its statement of relieved conditions expresses its warmest thanks to all foreign and Chinese supporters both in China and abroad, for their generous and continuous help in relief of famine suffering in the afflicted zones.

The notification of the closing of the books of the committee together with a summary of present conditions and prospect in the districts formerly classed as famine stricken are contained in the following letter received last night from Mr. K. Y. LI, Honorary Secretary of the Chinese Foreign Famine Relief Committee:

Shanghai, June 28, 1921.

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—With reference to the Famine in North China, I have great pleasure to report that copious and widespread rains in May have greatly modified conditions, and famine may now be said to be over.

On April 24, Rev. P. M. Scott, writing from the Hochien, Suning and Sien-Sien districts stated, that in view of the conditions at that time prevailing, he anticipated the necessity of adding fifty percent to the recipients of relief, and that relief would have to be maintained up to September 15, requiring about 7,500 tons of grain to carry on the work. On May 18, the same writer reports an entirely different situation, due to the favorable climatic conditions, abundant rains have not only assured a small percentage of crops in some places, where complete failure was threatened, but it had also given a more abundant yield.

While prospects in many districts are still far from a full crop, yet, with 40, 50 or 60 percent of a crop promised over wide areas, it is our judgment that in the larger part of our field, after wheat harvest, the claim for "Famine Relief" could no longer be made.

Rev. Pere Wetterwald, writing from Jenchiu, stated that "With good rains, this nightmare of a famine would pass."

Encouraging reports have been received from Pingsien, Tachang, Wenan, Tsangchow district etc. which all point to the fact that, after wheat harvest, famine conditions will cease to exist.

In view of all these reports, at the meeting of the Executive Board yesterday, it was decided to close our books on June 30, and as relief is no longer required, no further donations are solicited by this Committee.

In conclusion, I beg to take this opportunity to tender the Committee's warmest thanks to our foreign and Chinese supporters, both in China and abroad, for their generous and continuous help.

I am,
Yours faithfully,
Chinese Foreign Famine Relief Committee,
K. Y. LI,
Hon. Secretary.

Mixed Court Jottings

Sentence of six months' imprisonment was imposed yesterday by the Mixed Court upon the two Chinese charged with defrauding the Chinese public of San Francisco by soliciting funds under the plea that they were to go toward famine relief. In giving judgment Assessor Jacobs stated that the evidence adduced was not sufficient to prove the defendants to have been the principals in the fraud, but that it was sufficient to show that they knew a good deal about the matter. The sentence would have been heavier if the accused had been shown to have been leading figures in the scheme.

Three lads of the coolie class, one ten years old, another thirteen and the oldest fifteen, appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday in connection with the death of a boy who was assaulted on Lay Road last week. A doctor's certificate was introduced stating that death was due to typhoid, brought on by shock. The youngest prisoner was turned over to his father, who promised to produce him in Court tomorrow, and the others were remanded in custody.

The proprietor of an opium den at 240 Shantung Road was fined $30 yesterday, two patrons seized in the raid paying fines of $3 and two forfeiting bail of $10 each by non-appearance. Five men arrested for smoking opium at 266 Shantung Road were also fined and a warrant was ordered to issue for the lessee of the place.

A woman charged with running a public gambling establishment at 431 Elgin Road was fined $20 and 11 gamblers were fined $5 each.

A. R. Poliak, Russian citizen, was fined $5 by Assessor Ivanoff and Magistrate Loh for improper driving of a motor car.

An application was made before Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Kwan for the deportation of Simeon Venachuck, who is about to complete service of a jail sentence. It was ordered that application for a passport be made at the Bureau of Russian Affairs and that the Bureau be requested to see to the deportation.

EMPIRE LEADERS DIVIDED ON NEAR EAST PROBLEM

One Side Contends Dominions Should Have No Say Regarding Policy

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 28.—The discussion of foreign policy continued during yesterday's sitting of the Imperial Conference. The secrecy attending the proceedings in this connection is still observed but the London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian states that two schools of thought have developed in the conference.

One holds that European, or at least Middle Eastern, affairs should be kept in a separate compartment, for which Great Britain would be solely responsible, and that the Dominions should not seek information and should waive their right to influence decisions regarding them. Elsewhere the Dominions would be consulted as to their views and would be entitled to the fullest information regarding British policy in the areas immediately adjacent to them. Thus, Canada would be recognised as specially interested in matters relating to the United States and South Africa in African matters.

This proposal, it is said, is receiving considerable support, but is opposed by the Conservative school who regard the "compartmental" idea as impracticable and unwise. It is understood that Ministers from the same country differ in their views on the subject.

League To Assist Russian Refugees

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, June 27.—The Council of the League of Nations has decided to create a High Commissariat to deal with the repatriation or distribution of Russian refugees in foreign countries who are estimated to number 2,000,000, including 100,000 from General Wrangel's forces. A sum of 250,000,000 francs is required to establish the Commissariat and the governments concerned will be invited to find the money. They will also be asked to examine how far certain Russian deposits in the banks of their respective countries may be utilised.

Plans Taking Form Here For Christian Conference

The committee on arrangements has now definitely decided to hold the National Christian Conference at Shanghai on May 5-14, 1922. It is expected that approximately one thousand delegates, half Chinese and half foreign, will be elected by the different missions, churches and Christian organisations in China. Rt. Rev. F. R. Graves, D.D. is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The general subject proposed for consideration by the Conference is "The Chinese Church." This will be presented under five general heads, and commissions composed of Chinese and foreign members resident in different parts of China are being chosen to prepare the reports which are to come before the conference. The committee after much consideration as to the best method of selecting the members of these commissions has chosen the following chairmen and is with them studying in detail the method of selecting the members of each separate commission.

Commission I. The Present State of Christianity in China, Chairman, Rt. Rev. L. H. Roots, D.D., American Church Mission, Hankow.

Commission II. The Future Task of the Church. Chairman, Rev. C. B. Patton, of the American Presbyterian Church (North).

Commission III. The Message of the Church, Chairman, Rev. C. Y. Cheng, D.D. Shanghai.

Commission IV. The Development of Leadership for the Work of the Church. Chairman, Mr. David Z. T. Yui, M.A., General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. In China.

Commission V. Co-ordination and Co-operation in the Work of the Church. Chairman, Rev. C. G. Sparham, Secretary of the Advisory Council of the London Missionary Society in China.

Urge Disinfection Of Horse Hair Here

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 26.—The Committee of Enquiry on the question of the disinfection of horse hair reports that satisfactory disinfection of large quantities of hair arriving from China is impracticable and suggests the establishment in countries whence hair is imported of disinfecting stations under the control of a central authority, empowered to enforce disinfection of hair prior to its manufacture. The report adds that Russian, Chinese, Siberian and other Asiatic horse hair is "generally dangerous."

POLICE OFFICERS REFUSE DUTY; WANT TO RESIGN

Eight Foreign Constables On Strike As Resignations Are Rejected

Their resignations refused acceptance, the eight foreign Municipal police constables who went to the authorities last week with a protest to present working conditions, have refused duty.

The men, as reported previously, went with their grievances to the acting commissioner last week. Salary, promotion penalties and general conditions were all included in the protests presented. They were asked to defer further action—all had intimated resignation—until yesterday, so that the matter might be brought before the Watch Committee. The following morning an order was circulated to the various stations to which the men are assigned stating that any who wished to leave the force might present their resignations. All did so.

Yesterday the constables were received in a body by the Commissioner of Police and they were told that their resignations would not be accepted. It was not learned whether or not the question came before the Watch Committee. In consequence those men who were scheduled for duty last night refused to go out and those who are not due for duty until today stated that they would follow the lead of their companions.

Only One Third Of Children In School

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, June 20. (by mail).—Only one-third of the children of school age in the Philippine Islands are enrolled in the public schools, according to the report of Mr. Luther B. Bewley, director of the Bureau of Education, which has just been made public here.

There were about 2,750,000 children between the ages of 6 and 17 in the islands in 1918, according to the census figures. The total public school enrolment in December, 1920, was considerably less than a million, Mr. Bewley states. Despite the great progress made in educational lines during the last twenty years, the school system needs rapid extension, he says.

The cost educating the children enrolled in the schools was in round numbers 9,000,000 pesos last year.

In Kwangtung less than ten per cent of the children of school age now attend school, according to available statistics, and it is the intention of many delegates to urge the local government to provide free and compulsory education to all the children within a definite period, say six or eight years.

LOOTED CITIES UP RIVER SEEK PLAN TO INSURE SAFETY

International Settlement Is One Scheme Proposed At Wuchang Meeting

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, June 18 (by mail).—The inhabitants of this city do not know what to do to prevent a recurrence of the deplorable looting that has twice befallen them. The merchants held a meeting, to which they asked representative foreigners, so as to get some suggestions for future measures for safety. All the advice that could be given them was that they themselves should petition their own Government for permission to form an International Settlement on somewhat the same lines as that of Chefoo. Later, the Chamber of Commerce called a public meeting of all the citizens of Ichang at their premises, but nothing definite was done, and the meeting was dispersed with the promise that another would be called.

It is rather remarkable that the military officials provide the soldiers with the means of transporting their loot. Immediately after the looting on the 4th inst., the Third Regiment of the First Division was taken away on the s.s. Kweilee, which was laden to the gunwales with loot. When she returned a week later, she was sent off again with the Fourth Regiment, and again the steamer was loaded down with the loot of this town.

The fact that this regiment was to be moved away got on the nerves of the people, and there was a wild scare that night. People started rushing to what they considered would be places of safety, as some one must have started a rumor that the regiment was not going to leave the place without a few more pickings. But they were either overawed or thought better of it, for the night passed peacefully.

An official gave Reuter's correspondent the information that an estimate has been made of the loss suffered on the night of the 4th inst., and this is put at Tls. 500,000 of silver, about $750,000 in dollars, and one million tiao in coppers. This does not include the damage caused through the setting fire to houses, nor the damage sustained by foreigners. This estimate is probably far below the mark, for there has not been sufficient time to make an exhaustive enquiry into the losses that have been sustained by the merchants and others of this town.

The s.s. An Kong, of the An Lee Shipping Company (British) has now arrived here, after being to Shanghai for repairs, and has left on her first trip to Chungking for the season. This makes six steamers that are presently plying between here and Chungking, exclusive of the two operated by the Standard Oil Company and the Asiatic Petroleum Company, respectively.

H.M.S. Gnat, H.I.J.M.S. Saga and U.S.S. Palos are all in port.

Hankow, June 27.—The Chinese authorities rounded up a party of conspirators, armed with bombs and revolvers, last night in Chinese territory adjacent to the British Concession. Seven were captured but the others escaped.

Tariff Revision Asked By Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 28.—The Waichiaopu, in a note to the Legations, points out that the Shanghai conference on tariff revision in 1919 provided for further revision of the tariff two years after the war. The Chinese Government now notifies the powers that it desires that such revision be carried out.

The Legations are now considering the matter, but no definite course of procedure has yet been arranged.

DUTCH CABINET

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, June 26.—In connection with the resignation of the Cabinet owing to its defeat on the Army Reorganisation Bill, the Queen has consulted the leaders of the Left groups in the Second Chamber and also the leader of the Socialist Party.

Why Are We Here, Why Do We Stay?

together long in the same body.

WHY DO THEY STAY

Having indicated some of the reasons why the Shanghai population is here, the next question to arise is "Why do they stay?" Practically everybody detests Shanghai for the first month and many continue to hate it through the first year. After that, although they continue to excoriate the plumbing, the lack of central heating, the high price of imported goods, and similar flies in the jam, it is noticeable that they continue to stay despite the fact that steamers sail for home on the average of once a week.

Whether the lure of the East is a mystic potent compounded of arched bridges, moon gates, and the resonance of temple bells, or whether it is composed of such practical ingredients as plenty of servants, a spirited social life, and the advantage of being a large frog in a small puddle is more than we shall essay to answer. There are some who claim that the Orient forces all who stay more than a few months on its shores to eat a magic lotus and there are others of a more cynical turn of mind who say that the call of the East is "Boy!"

Perhaps, after all, we cannot hope to sum it up more definitely than the convivial song of political banquets and college parties at home.

"We're here because we're here because we're here because we're here"—which is quite accurate enough for all practical purposes.

REPORTS PERSIST OF NEW JAPANESE LOAN TO PEKING

Former German Concessions Given As Security, Says Rumor

(Asia News Service)

Peking, June 25.—Reports that a new loan had been concluded between the Chinese Government and Japanese interests, with the former German concessions in Hankow and Tientsin as security, resulted in unusual activity in all foreign circles today. While every effort was made, it was said, to keep news of the loan from becoming public, the report was from sources heretofore found reliable.

Terms of the consortium were said to have been violated by this loan and that was one of the reasons advanced for the unusual secrecy.

According to the report, the loan was arranged and signed on June 18 and the money was duly paid over to the Chinese Government on June 20.

The Japanese interests behind the loan is said to be the Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha Ltd., which has an extensive trading business in China.

The Chinese Government which in the last year has been more sorely pressed for money than ever before, has been especially hard pressed in the last few weeks, especially since the raid on the treasury by the Super-Tuchuns. It was the understanding of the Warlords at the time they visited Peking and ordered certain changes in Governmental affairs, that Japanese loans were to be negotiated wherever possible. A few days ago Chang Tso-lin wired the Government to be ready to get him a total of $2,700,000 at once for his Urga expedition. This may have moved the Government to sign the loan or it may have been done without Chang's permission. In the latter case, it is believed that he heard of the deal and made his demand on the government. His liberalty in leaving the Government $300,000 of the total is considered remarkable by those who know him well.

At the Japanese legation it was said that no information had been received regarding such a loan and there was a disposition among the members there to doubt it. They thought that in the event of such a loan the legation would be notified as it would be rather a peculiar procedure to sign such a loan without notification.

There have been so many reports of loans from Japanese sources however that in many circles the last report was not accepted. Many of the reports have proved to be false.

CARPENTIER—DEMPSEY FIGHT IS TO BE A FAR CRY FROM BARE FIST DAYS OF LONG AGO

Under New Rules The Maulers Will Not Even Be Allowed To Call Each Other Names, Let Alone Gouge Each Others' Eyes Out

BY ARTHUR WEST

Prize fighting began to achieve popularity in England during the reign of the first George; indeed it was at this time that the term "prize fighter" was first applied to the maulers. The original prize fighters battled not only with their bare fists, but with backswords, foils, quarterstaffs and single sticks, but fist fighting gradually supplanted the other methods in public favor until at last the bruisers became the real elite, hobnobbing with royalty and the great personages of the land. What a spectacle one of these huskies must have presented at a dinner given by a Duchess in his honor, sitting up there with his cauliflower ears and ordering the butler to bring on a clean knife to eat his pie with.

The first knock-out specialist to achieve the championship of England was one James Figg, a bare fist workman who administered sleeping potions with unvarying success during the eleven year period from 1719 to 1730. Figg was succeeded by one Pipes, who in turn was flattened by a knuckle artist named Gretting. He lasted until 1734, in which year the rollers were put under him by Jack Broughton, who is described as "a man of intelligence," intelligence apparently having been regarded as excess baggage in the fist wielder's equipment previous to that time.

THE FIRST RULES

With the advent of Broughton came the first attempt to frame legislation to govern the conduct of the game. It was Broughton who conceived the idea of dividing the contests into rounds, with a rest interval between them. Under the system inaugurated by this early British champion the maulers were no longer permitted to bite their opponents' ears, or gouge their eyes out, or jump on them with their feet when they were down, all these tender little practices having been regarded as necessary and desirable previous to that time.

Broughton, in addition to being a battler of no mean ability, was a gymnasium proprietor and a promoter of athletic sports. To him is ascribed the invention of boxing gloves, although these were not used in actual competition in his time but only for practicing. By the terms of the crude regulations framed by Broughton the gladiator was required to return to his corner after scoring a knock down, and both men had to "toe the scratch" at the beginning of the fight, the "scratch" being a white line drawn through the center of the ring.

Under these rules, too, a scrapper was required to "walk unassisted" to the scratch mark, if previously having been permissible for the seconds to carry their man, who sometimes was groggy from punishment, to the center of the ring. Broughton himself, in the fight that cost him the championship, was so blinded that he could not see his opponent, and begged his second to "lead me to the mark and I'll win the day yet." The second led him to the mark, but he didn't win the day. He was lucky, in fact, to escape with his life, so terrible was the beating administered to him by his opponent on that occasion.

GAINS IN FAVOR

Prize fighting continued to gain in popularity following the introduction of Broughton's rules and as previously the bruisers were idolised by all classes of the population, one of them, a scrapper named John Gully being elected to Parliament.

A great many of the bruisers of that day, wore long hair, one of them, a Jew named Danie Mendoza, being specially distinguished for his long, glossy locks. But Daniel's long hair proved his undoing eventually his "Delilah" taking the form of one Jackson, who held him down by the hair with one hand and beat him into insensibility with the other. A great dispute ensued over this, many brandin Jackson's trick as unfair. But the referee ruled otherwise whereupon there was a mad rush on the part of the knuckle wielders to the barber shops.

The brutality of the game, as practiced in the old, bare knuckle days, eventually caused a reaction in public sentiment, both in England and America, where the sport first began to get a foothold in the early part of the nineteenth

Jack Is To Get $300,000, Georges $200,000 For Battle

(Reuter's Service)

New York, June 27.—Mr. Tex Rickard, promoter of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, announces that a special flat purse of $500,000 will be put up for the fight instead of each boxer receiving a percentage of the receipts. Dempsey will receive $300,000 whether he wins or loses, and Carpentier $200,000, win or lose.

Gus Wilson, Carpentier's trainer, said the French champion is most optimistic that he will win the championship. Mr. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, says that the champion was never in better condition.

Experts express the opinion that Dempsey is showing less speed and less hefty punches than earlier in his training but Mr. Kearns said that he had instructed Dempsey to "take things easy."

London, June 27.—At Holland Park Hall tonight, in a twenty-rounds boxing contest for the Middleweight Championship for the Lonsdale Belt, Kid Lewis (Aldgate) beat Jack Bloomfield (Islington) on points.

Gink Claimed Sheriff's Porcelain Teeth Were False—Count Emout Loses Title

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Dear Sir: Was hoping in vain that you would make some gossip about my man, Count Emout. He spin the Gink for an acre of funeral wreaths. Gink skidded loose from the Count's knuckles. The Count started to run him. Gink's tongue was so parched that it started to smoke. When the Count finally put the Tosti on Gink he fell so hard that the Washington seismograph recorded a Chinese love letter. What are clay pigeons to a guy raised among saw-edged lions?

ED. J. SULLIVAN,
Los Angeles.

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Some pipple never learn. The champion of dear old Roughtown threw a nasty fight. The records on running, broad bribery show that he was no mannikin. He could take and give. The Count was a bogus peasant from the steppes of Siberia. It must have been the back steppes, because no pie was safe on the kitchen window when the Count had all his famine regalia polished up.

Roughtown honored Gink. The school gymnasium printed his picture on all the dumbbells. His signature was on anything wrong, and no accident was complete without him.

The Count tried to plant the frost on him, but without failure. Gink saw it coming and pulled in his Adam's apple. He was born under a favorable planet, but lived on the wrong one. When Gink saw the Count toying with a raw puma he immediately dropped two aspirin tablets in his Koko Kook and sat out in the sun to ferment.

When his anger got cooler than his fear he knew he was ready. Leading dangerously over a long-distance phone, he tapped the Count's till. Grabbing a blank check, the Count forged ahead. They were closer than eggs in an omelet. Here was where Gink's experience counted up the gate receipts. He twigged the Count's chin with a right and flattened him out like a kid's nose on a candy store window.

They fought toothpicks and doorknobs for sixty-five rounds. Then the sheriff of Roughtown suburbs stopped the fight. He said he had lost count of the rounds and sent the boys back to do it all over again.

It was a new fight. Sheriff made the same mistake at the end of eleven hours' fighting. The boys started in again.

They might have been starting yet if it hadn't been for a wise cracker from Riffraff, Nevada. He crashed the sheriff with a beautiful apple bough fragrant with blossoms. The sheriff went away from there with his engine running in three kind of different gears.

He was a jolly little beggar.

BYDAND CUP AND INTERPORT POLO SCHEDULED

Shanghai Team Will Go To Hongkong In Fall; Peking May Come

Polo promises to take the center of sporting interest in Shanghai within the next few days when, with the approach of dry weather and fields, the postponed tournament for the Bydand challenge cup, the first of the three important polo fixtures for the season will be begun.

It was said yesterday that polo men are but waiting for a favorable playing field to begin this event. The teams to compete in the tournament have been re-aligned, made necessary by the postponement of play and all is in readiness for the game.

The revised playing list follows:

(A).—E. H. McMichael (Capt.), O. S. B. Rowe, W. G. Crokam, E. S. Hine.

(C).—R. I. Fearon (Capt.), Dr. Billinghurst, Dr. Davis, J. C. Greig.

(E).—N. W. Hickling (Capt.), G. H. Stitt, J. F. Brenan, D. Fleming.

(F).—C. C. Boyd (Capt.), J. J. Peterson, C. Blix, J. P. B. Eastwood.

(G).—E. S. B. Rowe (Capt.), M. O. Springfield, H. M. Hind, V. Bicker-Caarten.

The second of the three big polo events for 1921 is the interport game or games expected to be played next month with Shanghai opposing Peking or Tientsin or both on the local field. Nothing definite has as yet been arranged for either of these games but it is expected that they will develop.

The third principal event will be the trip of the Shanghai Polo team to Hongkong, perhaps in September to defend the challenge cup which it now holds. No challenge has as yet been received from the South, but it is felt in Shanghai that this match may be classed as a certainty, for the Hongkong poloists are keen for another try for possession of the cup.

When this challenge comes, as it must, the Shanghai team will voyage to Hongkong with the cup. Plans now contemplate the Hongkong game for September, as a finale to the season. There will be no gymkhana in Shanghai this year.

Babe Ruth Hits 27th Home Run Of Season

Babe Ruth, the New York Giants' heavy hitter, rapped out his twenty-seventh home run for this season in the game at Philadelphia Saturday.

Ruth's record so far this year is five homers ahead of the corresponding date in 1920, and sixteen days ahead of his like performance of one year ago.

On June 25, 1920, Babe had made the circuit clout on 22 different occasions. He got two homers on that date, incidentally, both against Pitcher Pennock of Boston. His twenty-seventh homer in 1920 was registered July 11 against Detroit.

Last year Ruth's record for home runs was 54 for the season. This year, with the season two weeks short of half gone, and half of last year's record already registered Ruth is certain to establish a new record for homers, unless he is overtaken by a big slump in batting.

Boy Scout Contest Winners Receive Prizes Tomorrow

Prizes will be given to the winners of the Boy Scouts Shield Competition and Mobilisation Contest tomorrow at the troop headquarters, Polytechnic Public School, by the Headmaster, L. C. Healey.

The school drum and fife band will play at the beginning and end of the function.

The Scoutmasters have drawn out a program for the scouts to employ their leisure hours during the summer vacation.

BADEN POWELL SCOUTS

The French School Troop is now the proud possessor of Troop Colors—for which they are grateful to their School Committee. The Colors—a very handsome silk flag in French blue with the Scout badge, School motto, etc., in silver and white—were presented to the Troop by the French Consul-General at the School prize-giving on Saturday last.

After the prize-giving the Troop repeated their Jamboree display, programs having been sold to help Troop funds. In spite of a heavy shower of rain the highway robbers duly committed their dastardly attack on the old couple and, with the help of good Scout-craft by the Scouts, were captured in best style by the Police.

Trapshooters Planning Many Big Tournaments

New York, June 1.—Present indications are that this will be the banner year of trapshooting. With the exception of Louisiana, Maine and Massachusetts, every state has made arrangements for its state championship tournament. Louisiana has no state association, and no championship tournament has ever been held there. Massachusetts has chosen Boston as the place to hold the state shoot, but has set no date. Maine hasn't done a thing.

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—All hopes of bringing back to Great Britain the world's lawn-tennis championship have disappeared owing to the defeat at the Wimbledon tournament today of Major Kingscote by the Spaniard, Alonzo, the score being 6-1, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2. The other semi-finalists are Norton (South Africa), Shimidzu (Japan), and Hunter (U.S.A.).

AUSTRALIANS SWAMP NOTTS CRICKET TEAM

Visitors Win By Innings And 517 Runs—Other Scores

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—The following have been invited to play at Leeds in the Third Test Match which begins on Saturday: Major Hon. L. H. Tennyson (Captain); J. C. White; J. W. H. T. Douglas; Hobbs; Hearne; Woolley; and Mead. The presence has also been requested of V. W. C. Jupp and Hallows.

At Nottingham today before some 8,000 spectators, and in sunny weather with a perfect and easy wicket, the Australians, resuming their first innings, were dismissed for 675 (having scored 608 for seven wickets on Saturday), Hendry contributing 51. Hardstaff took five wickets for 133.

Notts then went in but were all out for 58, Gregory taking four wickets for 23, McDonald three for 26 and Mailey two for 1. Following on, Notts this time compiled 100, Carr making 31. Gregory took three wickets for 36 and Mailey four for 36.

The Australians, thus won by an innings and 517 runs. Their fielding was perfect. Scores: Australians, 675; Notts, 1st innings 58; Notts, 2nd innings 100.

In other first-class matches concluded today, Kent beat Leicestershire by seven wickets and Worcestershire best Derbyshire by six wickets.

The Australians have now agreed to their match against Yorkshire at Sheffield on July 20 being a three days' fixture, but have made it a condition that stumps are to be drawn at four o'clock on the afternoon of the third day. The fourth Test Match will open on July 23 at Manchester, hence their former objection to a third day's play in the Yorkshire match.

SHANGHAI AND CRUISER ALBANY MEET TODAY AT BASEBALL; GAME AT 5.15

Huron And Albany To Play Series To Decide Which Shall Represent Navy In The Big Game With Shanghai On July Fourth

IF the Stars and Stripes and a new flag of blue with orange lettering announcing the significant word "Game" is flown from the staff at the Race Course diamond this afternoon, fans may be confident that a baseball game is on tap. They may de-tram from their tramcars, or unload from their private or other rickshas assured that baseball will be in progress or prospect and then they may get by the gate-keeper as best they may.

The official announcement last night promised a game this afternoon with the Shanghai home folk opposing the men from the cruiser Albany, which has just arrived in port from Vladivostok, where they don't understand baseball and are not ashamed of it. The game will begin at 5:15 o'clock.

The Albany has a regular baseball team. They have four bona fide pitchers, which is three more than the big flagship, the Huron has, and incidentally double Shanghai's quota of moundmen. Aside from pitchers they have a real baseball team, which can play baseball in proper No. 1 fashion.

The Albany nine, in fact, is contending the Flagship's ability to qualify to the right to represent the American navy in the feature game on the Fourth of July between the Shanghai Baseball Club and the fleet. They have arranged for a series of three games to be played this week with the Admiral's nine, for the honor of appearing in that big baseball event, and they promise local fans that they will finish well in the final scores. The games will be played beginning tomorrow or Friday. The dates have not yet been decided upon. The Albany men have not played yet this summer, though they have worked out in Vlady on the Svetlanskaya Ulitza, Kopeack Gora and elsewhere and with a little workout at the race course will be in shape for the big test with the Huron.

NEW SCHEDULE TOMORROW

With this series in prospect and a new schedule of games under way by the local management Shanghai fans are assured of a game every day this week, to say nothing or not much of next week. Manager Ross last night promised to have a schedule ready for tomorrow's issue of the CHINA PRESS that would satisfy the most rabid baseball fan.

The new schedule which half promised games between the Huron, the Huron Marines, the Albany and Shanghai will be changed a bit to suit the demands of the flagship's baseball chiefs. The Marines, it appears, may not be able to enter the new league, due chiefly to the fact that the ship's nine insists upon retaining Marine Weaver, the boat's star pitcher, out of the Leathernecks' organisation. The Marines also are handicapped by transfers and crippled players.

The new schedule will see Shanghai, the Flagship proper (the first time the Huron's real team has played in this port), and the Albany at play. When the Wilmington floats down the Yangtsze a fourth team might be added. However, better not visualise the new schedule until tomorrow morning's issue.

This afternoon is the main idea. The Albany has an all around team, which is eager and keen to play. Lieut. Heath, the baseball officer of the newly arrived cruiser says he can put a better team in the field than the Huron can, and if a "once over" of the propaganda about his talent amounts to shucks, we might be convinced that he is talking advisedly.

Note the time again, 5:15 p.m. today, and don't fail to observe whether or not the new blue flag with the orange-tinted word "Game" is flying. It will mean a darned good game of baseball between Shanghai and the cruiser Albany.

FILIPINO TEAM WARMLY GREETED ON RETURN HOME

Athletes Praised For Victories In Olympic Games Here

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, June 20 (by mail).—The victorious Filipino Olympic team received a great popular welcome on its recent return from Shanghai officials of the Insular Government and members of the Wood-Forbes mission greeting the party at the pier.

Mr. Manuel Quezon, President of the Senate, who is also President of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Club, addressed the athletes, urging them always to play fair, and abide by the referee's decision not only in athletics but in life.

Mr. Camille Osias, Assistant Director of the Bureau of Education, who returned to Manila a few days after the arrival of the athletes, denied charges that the members of the team were not amenable to discipline while in Shanghai.

As a result of the showing made by the Filipino swimmers, authorities of the University of the Philippines have decided to make swimming a part of the University sports curriculum. Facilities have been provided on the bay near the University grounds.

Coming Fight To Be 'Debrutalised'

century. The growing resentment against prize fighting rapidly crystalised after the celebrated Sayres-Heenan contest at Farnsborough, England, in April, 1860, and that strenuous efforts were made to prevent this fight is indicated by a statement credited to Heenan, the American, who complained that "he had been chased out of eight counties by officers of the law."

When the fight was finally arranged, however, the company surrounding the ring was composed of the highest classes of society, one report of the battle indeed, went to the extreme of saying that "Parliament had been adjourned to patronise a prize fight." Sayres was smaller than the American, but he was the harder puncher, and soon had the American blinded. Just as he seemed on the point of winning the English champion broke one of the tendons in his right forearm, which robbed his punches of their steam and gave the American a respite. Heenan had neglected to harden his hands properly by "pickling" them in an astringent solution after the custom of that day, with the result that they were soon swollen to the size of hams, and were so soft that his blows had little effect on Sayres. Finally the American threw Sayres violently and was sitting on him when the crowd cut the ropes and began a riot in the ring. When order was restored, the fight was declared a draw, although both battlers loudly claimed victory.

THE LAST BATTLE

That was the last bare knuckle fight in England, reports of the contest having aroused press and public alike. Professional pugilism was outlawed, and if it had not been for the amateurs the game probably would have perished.

Among these amateurs was one John C. Chambers, a graduate of Cambridge university who had developed a fondness for sport in his college days. After he left college Chambers organised a tournament for "gentlemen amateurs" with a program of all sorts of athletic sports, including boxing. For all the other sports there were written and officially adopted codes, but for boxing there were no recognised rules whatever, only the verbal "regulations" promulgated many years before by Broughton.

To remedy this lack Chambers compiled a set of rules to govern boxing, and in honor of the eighth Marquis of Queensberry, a young nobleman who had taken an interest in the tournament arranged by Chambers, and who had agreed to present the cups to the winners of the boxing contests. Chambers named the newly written rules after him, and thus they became known as the "Marquis of Queensberry" rules. These rules, although short and simple, governed all boxing contests, amateur and professional alike, until recently. They follow:

To be a fair standup boxing match, in a twenty-four foot ring, or as near that size as practicable: no wrestling or hugging allowed; the rounds to be of three minute duration and one minute time; if either man fall through weakness or otherwise he must get up unassisted; ten seconds to be allowed him to do so; the other man meanwhile to retire to his corner, and when the fallen man is on his legs the round is to be resumed and continued until the three minutes have expired, and, if one man fails to come to the scratch in the ten seconds allowed, it shall be in the power of the referee to give his award in favor of the other man.

A man hanging on the ropes in a helpless state, with his toes off the ground, shall be considered down; no seconds or any other persons to be allowed in the ring during the rounds; should the contest be stopped by an unavoidable interference, the referee to name time and place for finishing the contest as soon as possible, so that the match must be won or lost, unless the backers of both men agree to draw the stakes. The gloves to be fair-sized boxing gloves of the best quality and new; should a glove burst or come off, it must be replaced to the referee's satisfaction. A man on one knee is considered down, and if struck is entitled to the stakes. No shoes or boots with springs allowed.

Under these rules the sport prospered from an amateur standpoint, but there was no letting down of the bars against the professionals, who, with their crooked managers and unsavory camp followers, including the gambling element, had made the game a stench in the nostrils of all decent people. This is why the battlers in America were forced to build their arenas in remote parts of the West, where the solidified public opinion had no had time to develop.

THE WAR HELPS

Gradually, however, the sport began to be recognised from a professional standpoint, and when the war came along, with its numberless training camps boxing soon became one of the most popular sports among the soldiers. Following the war there began a movement for a national controlling body to govern prize fighting, similar to those under which all other sports have flourished.

This movement is rapidly developing, with the result that fifteen of the sixteen states in America in which boxing is recognised have subscribed to the new rules laid down by the International Sporting club, of New York. These rules are based on the old Queensberry regulations, but they go much farther and cover scores of points not mentioned in the code written by Chambers in 1866, and named in honor of the marquis. To give an idea of how carefully the committee drew up the new rules it is reported that conferences were held over a period of three months, and that forty three preliminary drafts were torn up before a satisfactory code was evolved.

The new code provides, among other things, that fans shall be used by the seconds, instead of the old, dirty, and frequently blood soaked towels of former days. They also specify that only one second shall appear in the ring with a principal, to receive instructions from the referee. What a blow this must be to the bottle toters, towel carriers, sponge wielders, stake holders and hangers on, who in striped sweaters and horseshoe stick pins were wont to push themselves into the center of the ring, and into all the pictures.

MUST GO TO CORNER

One of the new rules stipulates that a contestant must retire to his corner after knocking his opponent down, and forbids the referee to start counting until the deliverer of the blow has actually retired to his corner. For another thing, there is a change in the rule regarding the kind of bandages that may be used on the hands. Formerly it was the custom of the maulers to encase their hands in winding after winding of adhesive tape until the battler's fists were as hard as brass knucks. Now only soft bandages may be used. The referee, instead of making all decisions himself, must confer with two judges, and votes himself only when the judges are tied. The judges keep track of points, and decide the match on points when there is no decision via the chin or solar plexus route. The time keeper strikes his gong with a metal hammer, thus doing away with the possibility of some wildly excited attendant pulling the rope by mistake, as happened in the Willard-Dempsey brawl at Toledo. Further, the time-keeper blows a whistle ten seconds before the beginning and end of a round.

The size of the ring has been reduced to 18 feet, instead of 24 feet, as formerly, and under the canvas there is a padding an inch thick. The smaller ring will mean more fighting and less of what our old friend Hindenberg used to call "strategic retreats."

There is no more ringside weighing in. The contestants step on the scales six hours before the fight, which means time to eat and digest a flock of beefsteaks before the battle. The newly arranged weights and classes are as follows:

Heavyweight, over 175 pounds; light heavyweight, 175; middleweight, 160; welterweight, 147; junior welterweight, 140; lightweight, 135; junior lightweight, 130; featherweight, 126; junior featherweight, 122; bantamweight, 118; junior bantamweight, 115; flyweight, 112; junior flyweight, 109.

All contestants must report to a new official, called the "Director of the Bout" at least two hours before the scrap. He will warn them against rubbing oil or grease on their bodies, and against the use of belladonna or oil of peppermint on their gloves to blind an opponent.

And finally, there must be no foul or abusive language.

BENTON, MANILA EDUCATOR, FEARS 'JAPANOPHOBIA'

Philippine University President Pays Tribute To Nipponese

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, June 20 (by mail).—Dr. Guy Potter Benton, President of the University of the Philippines, who has just returned from a trip of several weeks through Japan and China, cautions Americans against needless exhibitions of "Japanophobia." In a recent interview, he says:

"It is doubtless patriotic for American authorities to be alert in safeguarding our interests, but to a thoughtful observer the rabid Japanophobia manifested in some quarters seems hardly warranted.

"In Japan I was fortunate in having as my pilot Mr. Tsuton Miura, a graduate of the University of Vermont and of Columbia University, and the son of a prominent Japanese financier in Osaka. Under such intelligent guidance I was able to meet more satisfactorily and quickly people with whom I wished to become acquainted, and to see the institutions I desired to inspect.

"Of course my passports were carefully examined, but there were no unpleasant features connected therewith. The fact that I was an American seemed to guarantee me the most respectful consideration. Although I have travelled in almost every country of the world, I came away from Japan feeling that never, anywhere on earth, had I received more generous treatment. Polite consideration and sincere helpfulness were manifested on every hand.

"There may of course be an undercurrent of opposition to us that was not apparent to me, but I believe, as patriotic Americans we should be on our guard against hasty conclusions formed by people passing rapidly through Japan.

"My main purpose during the trip was to establish some connections that, I hope, may be valuable in relating the educational work of the University of the Philippines to that of similar institutions in this part of the world. Furthermore, the University of the Philippines is one of the newest institutions in the Orient, and it is fitting that those of us responsible for its direction should seek counsel from men who are more familiar, through longer practice, with educational countries."

MR. W. H. EMBERLEY

The death of Mr. W. H. Emberley of MacKenzie and Co., Ltd., occurred yesterday at his home, 126 Sinza Road. Death was caused by cancer and came after an illness of several months. A resident of Shanghai for over 20 years, he was keenly interested in public affairs.

Mr. Emberley was a member of the Civic League, the Quest Society and the Total Abstinence League, of which he was secretary-treasurer. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and a son.

Funeral services will be held at the Bubbling Well Cemetery this afternoon at 5 o'clock. All friends are invited to attend.

Commerce Chamber Convention Opens

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—The conference of the International Chambers of Commerce was opened in London today, and is attended by a large number of delegates, including 75 from the United States, representing 1,500 trade organisations.

The Lord Chancellor (Lord Birkenhead) in an address of welcome, said he believed the conference would be able to render greater services in restoring trade than any other body. They had, in the participation of American delegates, an advantage not possessed even by the League of Nations. It was useless, he declared, for them to ostracise any nation from their discussions.

Mr. Bedford, Chairman of the Standard Oil Company, said American business men were eager to help in the work of reconstructing the world, but unproductive expenditure on the part of Governments must be brought to an end. All mankind was longing for the limitation of armaments, and it was the duty of the world's statesmen to realise this ideal.

Delegation Vainly Seeks Loan Return

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 26.—Mr. Kao Chi-yun, representing the North-Western Chambers of Commerce (at Urga, Mimacheng, etc.), accompanied by seven of his colleagues, waited on the President yesterday in the hope of obtaining an interview. The President, however, could not see them, and they were received by a Secretary.

Mr. Kao presented his petition on behalf of the Chambers of Commerce, which is, in brief, a request for the repayment of the sums, owing to them for supplies to the troops under Generals Chu Chi-hsiang and Kao Tsai-tien, and for the punishment of General Chen Yi, the ex-Amban of Urga.

The delegation were dissatisfied with the somewhat evasive reply given by the Secretary, and have determined to call upon the Premier and place their demands before him.

Peking, June 27.—According to a Mukden telegram, General Keng Yu-tien, Military Commissioner at Changchun, was arrested on his arrival at Mukden by the order of General Chang Tso-lin. No official reason has yet been given for the arrest, but it is reported in private circles that General Keng is suspected of complicity in a military plot to hinder the Mongolian Expedition.

STEEL PRICES DROP

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—A further step to combat continental competition in the price of steel bars has been taken by the Scottish manufacturers, who are reducing their prices by £3 per ton. Nevertheless, Crown bars are quoted at £16, as compared with the Belgian offer of £9 15s. delivered at British ports.

A further Scottish reduction is foreshadowed on the settlement of the coal dispute.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 24.—The Japanese Military Aviation Bureau had just announced its decision to offer a big prize for the invention of such devices as to shorten the gliding range in either landing from or starting on a flight. The prize is offered with the hope that a type of flying machine best suited to the topographical conditions of this country will be produced.

The committee for the investigation and examination of the new designs consists of ten members, among them being veteran aeronautical experts and leading officials of the Aviation Bureau. The result of the examination will be published in the course of next year, when the winning models will be placed on exhibition.

U.S. Reply Awaited On Mandate Issue

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—The question of America's interest in mandates was raised in the House of Commons today. Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in reply to a question, announced that a letter had just been received from the President of the Council of the League of Nations, suggesting that, in view of the intimation of the United States Government that they were unable to accept any decision reached on this question without their approval, the Powers concerned should do their utmost to reach a solution of the points under discussion between them and the United States, so as to enable the Council to settle the whole question of mandates before the next meeting of the Assembly. Mr. Harmsworth added that His Majesty's Government would consider the best means of giving effect to this suggestion.

One of the most remarkable sets of photographs ever exhibited in Shanghai was shown at the Olympic Theater last night to illustrate Mr. Josef Hall's lecture on the terrific earthquake that devestated Kansu Province last December.

Mr. Hall, with Reverend A. J. Hayes, traveled through the stricken districts a few months after the catastrophe in order to ascertain the extent of the damage for the International Famine Relief Committee. The party journeyed to the remote province through Honan and Shensi, returning to Peking through Mongolia and Shansi after a tour of investigation.

The first views shown last night included many of the famous sights of Shensi, the most striking of which was the Hwa Shan. Those who have been puzzled by the irregular crags, perpendicular slopes, and unnatural outlines of mountains as they appear in Chinese art may find an explanation in the photographs of Shensi's great landmark. No mountain ever painted on a scroll of silk has more of elfin unreality in its formation than the Hwa Shan or "Flowery Mountain" which has been held sacred from the earliest days of Chinese history. Among the other interesting views in this set was a likeness of Confucius supposed to have been made by a contemporary, which represents him as a genial old man with long moustaches and a twinkle in his eye. The taking of rubbings from the stone likeness is prohibited because of the indignity to which the sage would be subjected by the massage of his face. The lecturer stated, however, that a little transaction with the caretaker made in the dark of the moon is effective in removing objections.

The long defiles through which the highway of North China winds on its way to Kansu, Tibet, and Chinese Turkestan were shown in a series of effective slides. As the soil of this loess region is composed of clay and powdered quartz, it is so easily affected by erosion that its level is constantly changing. Mr. Hall remarked that it's a wise river that knows its own course, and he substantiated the remark with pictures of miniature Grand Canyons dredged within only a few years.

Farms have an equally disconcerting way of sinking at one end and rising in another, so that a man who thought he bought level land suddenly finds himself in possession of a hillside, while he who imagined himself the owner of a bit of hilland may discover a few years later that his real estate has gradually sunk itself into a ravine. Owing to the fickle nature of the soil, Mr. Hall doubts seriously that it will ever be possible to construct a railroad into Kansu.

PICTURES REMARKABLE

Views taken in the earthquake region showed tremendous cascades of loose earth, houses battered beyond the semblance of human habitations, and dead bodies left in the street because the remaining survivors were too stunned by the disaster to undertake their burial.

The weird conformations of the soil, the utter barrenness, and the almost complete lack of signs of human life made the country seem, as the speaker said, a new planet still in the heat of creation. Several photographs were taken in the Valley of Death, where only three people survived out of a population which once numbered several hundreds. These three were carried to safety on the crest of one of the seven land-slides which devastated the valley.

Pictures showing the lakes which have resulted from dammed-up streams and which threaten the survivors with annihilation formed an urgent plea for relief work. Though the people of the province are making a few pitiable attempts to dig outlets for the imprisoned water-courses primitive methods of work and lack of laborers occasioned by the great loss of life mean that they can accomplish practically nothing by themselves. In addition, the numbing effect of the shock has so robbed them of initiative that they must have outside leadership.

Mr. Hall closed the lecture with pictures taken on the Yellow River and at the Mongolian border during the party's journey to Peking. Views of the Mohammedan region in northern Kansu contributed some idea of the commercial enterprise of the Chinese Moslems.

In addition to the lecture, there were a series of "shocks" by members of the A.D.C. Mr. E. P. Graham-Barrow gave as a monologue a description of the plot of the "Merchant of Venice" recounted by a British sailor to his shipmate during the recent visit of the Waring Company. Other numbers enthusiastically received was a telephone conversation with a houseboy and an imitation of two Sikh policemen directing traffic, given by the Silas Brothers; and a few vocal selections by Mr. S. J. Deeks and Mr. James.

Tuchun Wang 'Can't Bear Thought Of Leaving Province In Present State'

(Staff Correspondence)

Hankow, June 28.—Tuchun Wang Chuan-yuan, of Hupeh, addressing his high military officials at a special conference, told his once loyal subordinates in a most solemn tone, that while earnestly desiring to resign from the post of Military Governor, he could not bear to leave the province of Hupeh in the present chaotic state.

As soon as order and peace is in sight, he assured his men he would quit this province post haste. Meanwhile he has repeatedly wired his resignation to Peking, offering his retirement in favor of either General Wong Shih-tsen or General Chen Kwang-yuan, Tuchun of Kiangsi.

Joffre To Leave France Next Fall For Trip To East

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, June 27.—The idea of Marshal Joffre's projected world tour meets with universal approval. The actual program has not yet been definitely arranged and even the date has only been approximately fixed. It is known however that the Marshal will not leave France before the end of November or the beginning of December. His first visit will be to Indo-China, to which colony he is bound by many pleasant memories dating from the time when he was a captain in the Engineers.

M. Long, the Governor General of Indo-China, proposes to organise a demonstration on a grandiose scale in honor of the victor of the Marne who will probably visit the principal towns in Cochin-China and Annam. Marshal Joffre will then proceed to China and Japan, returning to France by way of California.

Japan To Protect Ailing Juveniles

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 24.—The Home Department has decided, states the Tokio Asahi, to enact a law for the protection of such juveniles as are exempted from compulsory education because of weak health, physical incapacity, mental deficiency and poverty, and also those who are not eligible for the benefit of the Factory Law. The proposed act would establish special educational and other necessary organs for such children, who number nearly 100,000. The authorities have been conducting investigations, and the drafting of the bill will be completed shortly. The regulations and estimates will be introduced during the next session of the Imperial Diet.

STRIKE AVERTED

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 28.—The industrial cloud, affecting 250,000 workers, which has for some time been hanging over the woollen textile industry, has ended in an agreement between the employers and operatives involving a 16 percent reduction in wages, as compared with the owners' original suggestion of 22 percent.

CONSUL AT NANKING

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 27.—Mr. Fukasawa, Chinese Secretary at the Japanese Legation, has been appointed Consul at Nanking.

BETTER CABLE SERVICE

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 27.—In the House of Commons today at question-time, Mr. Pike Pease, Assistant Postmaster-General, stated that there had been an improvement in the last few days in regard to the Eastern Telegraph Company's transmission of cablegrams to India and the Far East, and immediately the work of renewal of certain sections of cables in the Red Sea was completed—probably within a fortnight—he hoped that the present exceptional delays would cease.

ABC
OUR correspondent and stockholding bank in San Francisco has a history which goes back to the pioneer days of California. It is the successor of two old English banks, the Anglo-California and the London, Paris and American Bank, both pioneers in the exchange banking field. The Anglo and London Paris National Bank, successor to the two older banks, took a leading position on the West Coast and now enjoys the distinction of being the largest national bank in point of deposits in any city west of Chicago and St. Louis.
This is one of the great American banks which are stockholders in the Asia Banking Corporation.

Hankow Market

The British Chamber of Commerce of Hankow write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, June 22:

FINANCE & MONEY MARKET

The London price for bar silver after receding to 34⅝ ready and forward on June 17, has advanced again and the latest quotation to hand is 35⅝ ready and forward, the price in London on June 22. The quotation for ready silver is therefore the same as that of a week ago while the forward quotation shows a net gain of ⅛d. The local exchange market has ruled firm and the official quotation for sterling has advanced to 3/6⅝ for T.T. closing firm. The New York-London cross rate improved to 3.82½ on June 16 but has since reacted, the closing quotation wired from New York on June 22 being 3.75⅛. Chinese market rates: T.T. on Shanghai: 97.45. Dollars: 70.675; native interest: 11%.

EXPORTS

The market is still quiet and prices firmly maintained for hides, sesamum seed, beans and wood oil. Cotton is a little easier.

IMPORTS

Piece Goods:—The market continues dull and "nervy" on account of the uncertainty still prevailing about Wuchang affairs. Prices are firm but there is very little business being done.

The Situation In Siberia---A First Glance

Note: The following is the second of a series of articles by Dr. A. E. Zucker of Union Medical College, Peking, who is spending his summer vacation touring Siberia and Russia for THE CHINA PRESS. This article was mailed from Harbin, June 20. ...

BY DR. A. E. ZUCKER

DURING the Russo-Japanese War for reasons I do not recall I was a wild partisan of the Russians and used to get beaten up by my fellow sixth-graders who to a man, or boy, sided with Japan for reasons which they realised probably just as little as I did the cause of my sympathy for the land of mujiks, troikas, and vodka. Later on I became a devoted reader of Turgenieff and Tolstoy, Gorky and Tchechoff—writers whom I talked over with Russian students at college. When I came out to China one of my plans was a summer in Siberia—an idea which I hope I can realise at present.

At Changchun the Russian train, the Russian railway officials in their boots, official caps, and long white coats caught in at the waist by a belt of heavy leather, and the typical Russian meal in the luxurious dining car gave me the thrill one gets at the beginning of the realisation of a long-cherished wish.

Along the road to Harbin there is considerable Russian population—houses built of wood and cows grazing in pastures give an air that seems to carry one away from China to a culture that is European. The porter on the sleeping car (his cap bears this inscription in English) is a Russian who says, "Parlez-vous francais?" I ask him what he is doing and how he likes it, and learn that he is a porter at $30 a month, not found and that he would very much prefer still to be a student at Petrograd whence the Revolution had shifted him to this forlorn post. When asked why he doesn't go to Shanghai and earn a few hundred dollars per month he says that the chief reason is that he can't speak English. It is remarkable how the English and Americans by dint of refusing to acquire other languages have made of their tongue the universal language which every one wishes to know.

At four-twenty we pull into Harbin, an outport of Russian imperialism pushed down into Chinese territory. There is nothing Chinese about it like Mukden with its walls and gates and tombs; it's a pure Russian city, with wide streets and European style houses. A church with fine pineapple spires in blue waves an orthodox welcome and it's a heavy Russian porter who takes one's baggage from the train and delivers it to an izvoschik. "Hotel Modern" is my address and I rattle over the cobble-stone pavement of streets that are never repaired and never watered. At the hotel a most hostile-looking man receives me, gives me a room at a hold-up price, while he tells me in typical East side English what a fine place his "Modern" Hotel is. Here I found also a bit of Russian atmosphere, little red-fellows whom Gogol describes so beautifully in his "Dead Souls." I left this hotel before breakfast.

I called on the consul of the Far Eastern Republic to get my passport vised for Chita. He lives in a very simple house and seems to be hard-worked. He has a bit of a tired look about his eyes, but his movements bespeak the former army officer. Since May 1 he has vised 600 passports for Siberia, has stocks of requests to locate relatives in Russia, and has a basket full of calling cards, many of them from foreign business firms who are looking for concessions in Siberia.

Negotiations are well under way for a concession to a California firm whose representative has started for Blagovestchensk against the advice of the American Consul, also to a Japanese firm from Osaka, and an English-Norwegian Banking Syndicate who are asking for the "Cabinet Ground," former Tsarist property rich in mining territory. Various small Japanese and Chinese firms are already on the ground and at work. From men in Peking who had been to Chita I understood that what the people of the Far Eastern Republic need is foreign capital and they seem gradually to be getting it.

The news from Vladivostok gathered from a stand of newly-arrived papers was that no new aggressive steps had been taken and that even the Japanese did not seem to have so very much trust in Merkuloff's government. Of Ungern there was no news at all.

I told the consul, Mr. Ozornin, that I should like to see something typically Russian and he sent one of his secretaries with me to the band concert at the Railway Club where I would see the last stand of the Whites, the old Russian glory still in flower as it is nowhere else in the world, with the possible exception of Vladivostok. We entered the spacious grounds and began the evening's amusement with a Russian dinner on the porch of the Club from which we could overlook the whole scene; at some distance the huge quarter-globe lighted with brilliant arc-lamps in which sat the orchestra of about fifty pieces, with the real music lovers seated in the tiers of benches before it and the strollers promenading in a brilliant stream around and around. We were being served our zakooska and vodka as well as the rest of a good meal by waitresses who in their general appearance might have been Wellesley girls officiating at some charity affair. I was told that they were widows of former Russian officers, and number 99 was pointed out to me as the wife of a former governor of a province seeking out an honest living in this lowly position. What tears and what bitterness there must lie in every dish of caviar she serves and every bottle of champagne she opens!

We then joined in the crowd of the strollers—a truly distinguished company of brilliantly uniformed men and attractively dressed, pretty ladies. My companion asked me to note all the uniforms which now have been abolished in Russia by the twelve million whom their masters had clad in field gray in 1914. Officers of Semenoff's army in red breeches with a yellow stripe; a savage-looking two-hundred pound general in blue loaded down with gold braid; a flashy young lieutenant with the emblem of Nicholas II—he with laughing blondes on each arm. And Cossack officers, too, in their picturesque dress loaded down with swords and daggers on this hot summer evening. But not only the military wore arms in Tsarist Russia—everybody in that autocracy formerly wore the badge of whatever particular master he served. All the railway employes—and Harbin lives by the Chinese Eastern—have on their caps the emblem of the hammer and anchor, or some other design, and it must be said these white yachting caps look very dressy especially when seen over a distinguished face. A man in a gray van dyke passes by dressed in a long blue coat trimmed in gold, and I learn that he is a judge. A similar coat with less gold covers the well-fed body of a professor in the Commercial School. His students flit about in pursuit of not too elusive young ladies and these cadets or commercial students wear also their special caps with ridiculously small vizors and often, too, they wear the typical Russian coat caught in with a belt at the waist and covered with embroidery all around the collar and the edges. These coats are not for sale—they are the work of love, every stitch of them. Noble Russia in Harbin! I'm glad I've seen at last a provincial aspect of a glory that has passed away.

I also saw the ordinary Russian, the ninety odd percent, on a Sunday afternoon on the Sungari River. This is the only possible spot for an outing in Harbin. Everywhere else is the hot and dusty plain with very few trees to invite picnics. But they come down to the river in the droshkies with long-bearded and red-coated drivers beautifully set off in the high seat. Hundreds of boats are for rent and a rather hard and frowzy looking crowd drifts down the river to row, picnic, and swim. In one boat there was a young Russian lady who had lived long enough in Australia to say, "I think Harbin is a dirty hole; the people have no shame at all. I wouldn't be surprised if we'd see even women swimming naked."

And to her disgust we did. I noticed suddenly about fifty yards ahead a moist and glittering figure with copious hips raise itself out of the water, plunge down again to her neck and paddle about. She was one of a group of five girls who were cooling themselves in the stream after they had undressed on shore, to which they returned again after a few minutes, dressed quickly and walked away singing. Nobody took the least notice of them, no more than of a group of men who were bathing "au natural" further up the river. Whether this natural way of bathing without clothes is worse than what goes on in the "social bathing" at our beaches where women wear tight-fitting suits and even silk stockings and are lifted over the beaches by sturdy lounge-lizards, is to my mind a question I should not answer in the affirmative.

The crowd of "mobelarians" had its outing with boating and singing, beer and kwas; peaceful and good-natural they were, though not ultra-refined. I believe that these young men and well-developed girls are members of a race that will make itself felt on this old globe of ours. But I regret that they have lost their refined nobility—a class that is bound to die off because of its intransigence and unadaptability.

An American officer who has spent two years in Siberia, partly with Kolchak, told me an anecdote that illustrates this latter quality. Near the Urals was a group of Mensheviks, mild socialists, who were fighting the Bolsheviks. He suggested to Kolchak that he join these Mensheviks to his forces, but the then ruler of Siberia answered, "No, shoot them down, they are just as bad as the Bolsheviks!".

A SONG OF THE WORLD

There was a bard in a former age
Compared the world with a player's stage,
And most folk think he hit it;
But I believe, and I may be right,
The world's a tune that we sing at sight,
We learn it—to forget it.

* * *

We all are "notes" in a different "key,"
Some "flats" some "sharps" some "naturals" be,
Some "quicker" and some "slower!"
Like Handel's some are full of grace;
Like Pleydel's, some are thorough "bass,"
Some "higher" and some "lower."

In life's short tune what "airs" we find—
Bold, cheerful, gloomy, dull, refin'd,
In full "symphoniale;"
Our time is "quick" and soon we "close,"
We "beat" away without a "pause,"
Till death sings the "finale."

The world, I own, has "ties" most sweet,
Yet many a "bar" and "slur" we meet,
Though very much we fear them;
Some men can nought but "discords shrill"
With some the world sings "counter" still,
Nor gives one note to cheer them.

The "pitch-fork" tunes the farmer's voice,
The "sack-but" is the miller's choice,
And all men's the "viola,"
The maiden plays the "flageolet,"
While married folks sing a "duet,"
And bachelors a "solo."

THE SILLY YOUNG PUP!

It was the reading lesson, and Johnny Brown was reading aloud, and reading very badly.

"The captain," he declaimed, stumbling painfully over the words, "as he stood on the bridge while the big ship ploughed her way through the fog, suddenly espied a———"

Johnny paused. The next word was altogether too much for him.

"B-b-b-ba——" he stuttered.

"Get on, Brown!" said the master.

Brown got on.

"Barque, boy!" roared the master—"Barque!"

Johnny glanced pitifully around the class-room—then at the master, then at the book. Then he opened his mouth, and:

"Bow-wow," he replied, "Bow-wow!"

-:- Sir John Simon On The Irish Question -:-

BY RT. HON. SIR JOHN SIMON

(Attorney General and later Home Secretary in the British Ministry during the war; one of the counsel in the Alaskan boundary arbitration, and one of the most distinguished lawyers of England)

The British Prime Minister's reply to the Protest of Anglican and Free Church leaders against the policy of British reprisals in Ireland, raises in the most precise form a moral issue which lies at the root of British conceptions of civilised administration.

That issue is nothing less than the question whether it is permissible for the agents of a Christian and civilised community to attempt to repress and discourage outrage committed by unidentified individuals who are on the run by visiting the whole countryside where such an outrage occurs with counter-outrage by way of vengeance or collective punishment, so that the innocent suffer without redress and a condition of official terrorism is set up which it is vainly hoped will promote peace with Ireland.

The Prime Minister's attempt to defend the proceedings of his agents during the last nine months also lifts a corner of the veil which has been so elaborately thrown over what those agents have really been doing. Some of the admissions which he is constrained to make as to their behavior are of the gravest character, and are in startling contradiction with previous Ministerial assurances.

PREMIER EVADES FACTS

Mr. Lloyd George tells us that in July, 1920, he decided to create a new force in Ireland called the Auxiliary Division, and he complains that the authors of the protest should describe this force as "irregular." One of the marks of Regular troops in that they wear uniform when discharging their duties, and Mr. Lloyd George describes the Auxiliaries as doing so.

But two days before the Prime Minister wrote his letter, there was a lamentable and fatal affray at Castleconnell between two bodies of Crown forces, neither of which was in uniform, and each of which mistook the other for members of the Republican Army.

And on the very day on which Mr. Lloyd George's letter was circulated, the Attorney General for Ireland stated in the British House of Commons that one of these bodies consisted of Auxiliaries on active duty "in plain clothes."

The facts about the creation of the Auxiliary Division, whether its members deserve to be called "Irregulars" or not, are plain enough. It was recruited in London for temporary service in Ireland by public advertisement and by the offer of a high rate of pay; the recruits for the most part were not Irishmen, and their actions show that they regard Ireland as a country which is inhabited by an inferior race, which it is their business to overawe and their privilege to bully.

MANY OF THEM DRUNK

These men have received the minimum of training for their special duties, and the evidence is overwhelming that their discipline is so lax that many of them are often under the influence of liquor.

I have before me first-hand evidence that within the last few weeks some of them are making it their boast that they are not under the effective control either of the military or of the police authorities, and that whatever may have been the original composition of the force, some of its members assert that their comrades now include men who are not exofficers at all.

The record and behavior of members of the Regular Army in Ireland are very different, and we owe it to them to insist that there is the widest distinction between their relations with the civil population and those which the "deplorable excesses" (I use Mr. Lloyd George's own words) of the Auxiliary Division have succeeded in creating.

The Prime Minister now tells us that he "will not attempt to deny that deplorable excesses have been committed" by the Auxiliary Division. He, however, contends that the worst period was in the early days of the force.

He confesses that "a certain number of undesirables have got into the corps," and that some of the Auxiliaries "have undoutedly been guilty of unjustifiable acts."

HIGH RATE OF GUILT

And in order to prove how much better things are, he produces statistics for the last three months. During this period of improved conduct, he states that 334 members either of the Auxiliary Division or of the Royal Irish Constabulary have been deprived of their posts, either as the result of prosecutions or of sentence by Court-martial or as being unsuitable to be members of the force.

Of this total, dismissed men belonging to the Auxiliary Division actually amount to 5 percent of the total strength of that force, so that at a time when the Auxiliary Division was on its best behavior it is found necessary to get rid of them at the rate of 20 percent per annum!

Such is the high-water mark which the Prime Minister's agents have attained, and he leaves us to imagine how much worse their conduct must have been when their "deplorable excesses" were unchecked.

Are we to understand that the rank and file of the Black and Tans behaved better than this Corps d'elite? If so, no stronger condemnation of the ex-officers who are said to compose the Auxiliary Division can be conceived. If not, the Prime Minister's statistics of official reproof are obviously imperfect.

A STORY OF OUTRAGE

In this earlier period occurred the sack of Balbriggan, on September 21 (when Sir Hamar Greenwood admits that by way of reprisal for the shooting of two constables, 150 men visited the town in motor-lorries at night, destroyed the cottages of the poor, as well as a large factory, and murdered two men against whom no charge had been made; the attack on Trim on September 26, after the wounding of a constable (when the Town Hall was gutted, the hotel was attacked with a machine-gun, and the whole population was exposed to indiscriminate violence); the reprisals on Mallow on September 29 (when public as well as private buildings were burned, and anyone who tried to quench the flames was fired at); and the reprisals at Tubercurry on October 2 (when four motor-lorries of armed men, after breaking into licensed premises and drinking there, fired the principal shops of the place, smashed up buildings and completely destroyed a co-operative creamery).

It is not without significance that after these "deplorable excesses" the Prime Minister made a speech on Ireland on October 11, at Carnarvon, in which he had not one single word to say by way of rebuke or restraint of these proceedings, and that on October 20, in the House of Commons, the Chief Secretary for Ireland was pleased to say:—"I have yet to find one authenticated case of a member of this Auxiliary Division being accused of anything but the highest conduct characteristic of them."

OFFICIAL TERRORISM

Yet exactly six months later the Prime Minister is constrained to admit that in this very period there have been "deplorable excesses," and that "undesirables" in this corps of officers and gentlemen have been "guilty of unjustifiable acts."

What is the explanation why, in the autumn of last year, the Prime Minister and the Chief Secretary spent their time in trying to conceal the real character of the proceedings of the new forces which they had let loose in Ireland?

It was because a policy of terrorism had been decided on but it was thought impolitic to avow it. It was because they hoped that in a few weeks or months the dirty work would be over, and the success it had secured would conceal the methods by which it had been obtained.

Thus, on October 25, Sir Hamar Greenwood told the House of Commons, "The policy of the Government has succeeded, and

BOYES, BASSETT & CO.

The Shades of Jade.

Nephrite and Jadeite are alike in their structural composition, a mass of very fine fibres, on which their singular toughness and compactness depends.

It is not easy for an amateur to distinguish Nephrite from Jadeite. The latter is usually of brighter more vivid coloring, more translucent, and is sometimes partially crystallized.

Both of these stones, when pure, are theoretically white, but because of the presence of minerals, chiefly iron, they show a varied assortment of colours.

Usually the colour is of some shade of green—gray green, sea green, moss green, lettuce green, apple green, grass green, emerald green, or a very dark green.

The most prized Jadeite is a white matrix strewn with more or less sharply defined streaks or spots of emerald green.

TEXACO

the Asphaltic Paint

Use Texacoat anywhere that rust need be avoided. It is a liquid asphaltic coating which forms a tough and durable weather-proof skin over any surface to which applied, filling in crevices where rust has started. Use it on metal or composition roofing, structural steel, smokestacks, or any other like surface. You may experiment freely because Texacoat contains no ingredients harmful to wood, metal or concrete.

Texacoat is weatherproof because it is made of asphalt one of Nature's most effective water-proofing minerals. It will protect any surface from the action of weather, moisture, chemical fumes, salt air fumes, gas or smoke.

Keep a pail of Texacoat handy—it is easily applied with a brush, the same as any paint. Frequent use will save you money.

Sir John Simon On The Irish Question

succeeded rapidly. The total number of outrages has rapidly decreased."

If he was to say so today, his statement would carry as much conviction as if he were to assert that the City of Cork had been destroyed by spontaneous combustion.

On November 9, at the Lord Mayor's banquet, the Prime Minister assured his fellow guests that he had "got murder by the throat."

On November 15 he told the House of Commons, "we are simply enforcing law in Ireland and I believe we are doing it successfully."

Mr. Lloyd George would hardly have produced the same comforting impression if he had said then (as he says now) that his agents, instead of simply enforcing law, were themselves guilty of "deplorable excesses."

On November 18 Mr. Lloyd George cheerfully announced that "he thought things in Ireland were getting much better." More extraordinary still, on November 24 the Chief Secretary stated, "I am doing my best, and have done from the start, to prevent reprisals, and I have succeeded."

Yet within the last few days there has been widespread burning and destruction in Kerry in reprisal for the murder of an officer, and similar reprisals have been officially announced and carried out in Tipperary.

No wonder the Prime Minister was reduced to speechlessness when he was asked (on March 17) whether he approved of official reprisals. No wonder that Mr. Austen Chamberlain (on April 19) declared that "official reprisals" was a term which he did not recognise and declined to answer the question how they could be justified in Ireland when civilised opinion throughout the world denounced them seven years ago in Belgium.

The Prime Minister does his utmost to persuade the religious leaders of Britain that he has been engaged from the beginning in sternly repressing the deplorable excesses of his agents.

On the contrary, he has not found one word to say in rebuke of them as long as he thought there remained the slightest prospect of their methods succeeding.

HE "ENCOURAGED OUTRAGE"

His condonation has encouraged every wild and reckless spirit to further outrage.

The Report of German Atrocities in Belgium (Cd.7894, p. 16) truly observes, "When once troops have been encouraged in a career of terrorism, the more savage and brutal natures, of whom there are some in every large army, are liable to run to wild excess, more particularly in those regions where they are least subject to observation and control."

No one who is acquainted with the recent proceedings of members of this force will accept the view that, after the patronage and protection which they have enjoyed, the recent dismissals have turned them into a force which, in Mr. Lloyd George's words, will "command the admiration of posterity." Non tali auxilo, nec defensoribus istis Tempus eget.

So much for the success of the policy of counter-outrage. What about its moral justification?

Mr. Lloyd George challenges religious opinion in Great Britain on this subject. He insinuates that in the presence of outrage and murder committed by desperate men against members of the Crown forces there is nothing wrong in the adoption of corresponding methods by those who ought to be the upholders of law and order.

This is a doctrine which is subversive of the first principles of civilised government.

One of the chief differences between civilised administration and barbarous administration consists in this, that a civilised Government, in wielding executive powers for the detection and suppression of crime, secures that innocent people shall not suffer at the hands of the authorities for wrongs committed by others; and that even suspected people, instead of being shot like dogs by armed agents of the Crown, should be arrested and brought before properly constituted tribunals and furnished full security for the accused to defend themselves.

This is the moral issue which the Prime Minister's latest declaration clearly raises. It remains to be seen whether the leaders of organised religion in Great Britain will take up the challenge.

One of them at any rate has very effectively disposed of the monstrous insinuation that those who denounce reprisals perpetrated by servants of the British Crown are condoning the shocking acts of violence for which Sinn Fein is responsible.

CANTERBURY'S DENUNCIATI

"The man," declared the Archbishop of Canterbury in the House of Lords on February 22 "who says—and there are not wanting those who either say or imply—that because we criticise some part of the Administration, or its apparent ineptitude in a fearfully grave matter, we are condoning Sinn Fein outrages or shielding, or excusing, or minimising their wickedness, is so stupidly ignorant that his words may be disregarded.

"If he is not ignorant, but informed, and still says so, then I say bluntly that what he says is a lie. It is a question, not of politics, but of ethics, a question of right and wrong, the ordinary abiding principle of right and wrong in public affairs. Not by calling in the aid of the devil will you cast out devils or punish deviltry."

I submit, therefore, that the policy of reprisals is both politically disastrous and morally wrong. Instead of restoring peace it is intensifying war. Instead of vindicating British prestige, it is exposing us to the scorn of the world.

It is adding day by day to the store of bitter memories which keep Britain and Ireland apart. It is turning Mr. Lloyd George's heroics about the rights of small nations into nauseating cant.

It is undermining the character and self-control of hundreds of young Englishmen by permitting them to indulge in deplorable excesses of every kind.

It is directing the energies of hundreds of young Irishmen into the horrible channels of assassination and outrage, when their inextinguishable devotion to their own land ought to be working out a better and happier future for Ireland.

Surely it has become plain that the policy and method of reprisals must be entirely abandoned, that these new forces must be wholly withdrawn and disbanded and that a truce must be offered in which a new solution may be sought by mutual conciliation and understanding.
